spirit

The world is in turmoil. Pandemonium reigns. Complexities rise to challenge minds that seek refuge in idealism——idealism in a world of reality!

While civilization burns, while the castles of civilization crumble, while humanity decays, while our American way of life is threatened, we seek refuge in what is pure and bright—our American spirit!

Menacing threats crack the defenses we have built—our way of life. Yet what we have is more than valuable—we have spirit alive with hope . . . hope of mind . . . hope of body. . . .

We have come to believe more than ever in the ultimate victory of what is right. We have sought a certain guarantee for the coming Victory.

We have found it in our American spirit. We have found it in a multitude of little things that symbolize American morale. We have found it in the little things that make life meaningful.

Ours is the American spirit of 1943!

OFFICE OF THE PRINCIPAL

November 19, 1942

Dear Graduates:

The best wishes of the faculty and the lower class men go with you as you leave us to take your places in the more serious school of life. We have watched with deep appreciation your efforts to make Thomas Jefferson High School a force for good in the greater community as it struggles to survive the storm and stress of a world war. We feel that your contributions to this cause have been most valuable and that you have set a fine example for succeeding generations of Jeffersonians. We hope that you have learned the all-important lesson that all social and collective action is successful only to the extent that each member of society feels his individual responsibility.

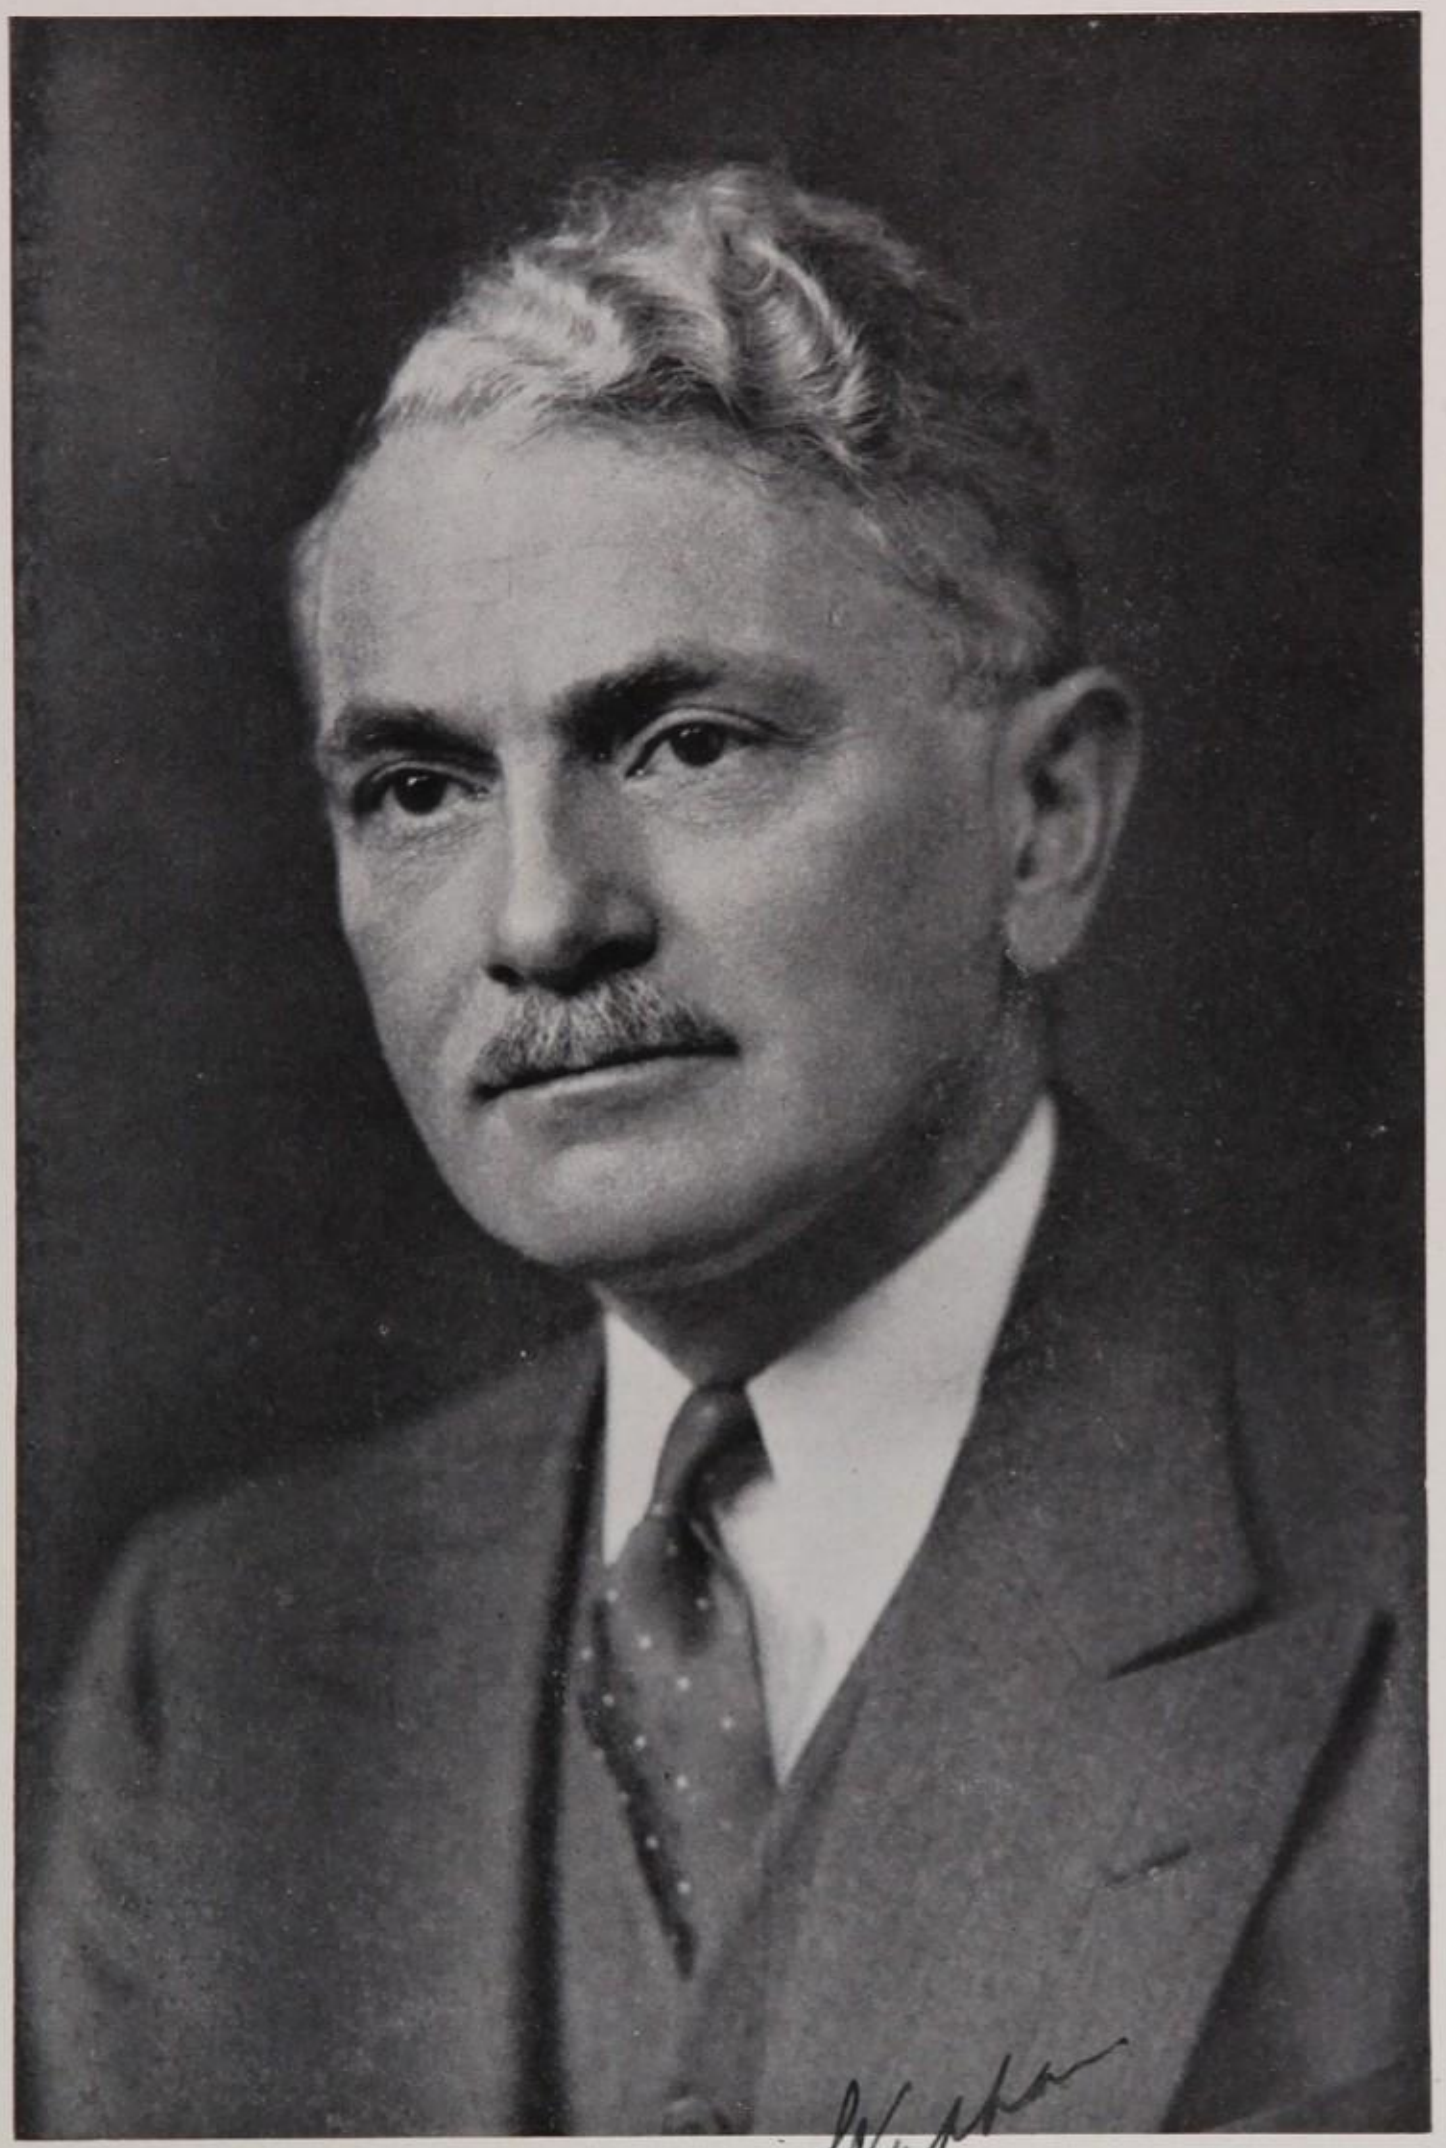
Our girls will find that society will demand much more of them in the way of self-sacrifice. Your whole-hearted cooperation in the life of the community is absolutely essential for the winning of the war.

To the boys who are about to go into the armed forces, we give our thanks for the sacrifices they will make so patriotically in the cause we all hold so dear. Our best wishes and our prayers go with you. Let us hear from you as often as possible, because we will want to know what you are doing. To you we can only say as the Bible puts it:

"Quit yourselves like men—be strong."

Sincerely yours,

Ludorg Kaphan



Dear Seniors:

What can anyone say to you today, that will have any meaning for you? Perhaps I should tell you what you already know. And then offer you a suggestion.

Life IS cruel. I do not refer now to the bestial savagery and the lust for murder among the Axis leaders and so many millions of their bloodthirsty followers. That is another story too gruesome to mention. But I do refer to the countless minor cruelties each of us encounters in his normal, daily life—the injustices, the discriminations, and the other wrongs that cast so many shadows upon what might well be a pleasant, cheerful existence.

You, who are about to leave the sheltered life of Jefferson—what will you do when you encounter such inequalities in your own lives? Will you give way to cynicism, anger, hatred toward the world? Or will you try to emulate George Washington Carver?

Who is George Washington Carver? Born a slave. Self-educated. Great scientist and public benefactor. Instead of making millions of dollars for himself by copyrighting his discoveries and inventions, Dr. Carver has given all those discoveries and inventions to the American people, free. He has been confidential adviser to other great people in many fields of endeavor. So fine a man is he, that the Herald Tribune, in a recent editorial, used the word "saintly" to describe his character.

Just the other day, Senator Truman, of Missouri, and Representative Short, of the same state, introduced a remarkable bill in Congress. It would make the Missouri farm on which this great Negro was born a Federal memorial. Mind you, this honor is scheduled for Carver while he is still alive.

Does this mean anything to you, especially in these days? Or will you, who are about to pass through the gates to a broader life, scoff at such encouraging signs of greater fellowship and good will between races and religions?

I know that a war is going on. I know that hatreds are being engendered and that love and respect for one's neighbors are being put to the supreme test. But I warn you that unless you begin, here and now, to train your minds and your hearts to look for the tie that binds us to our fellowman, even in this day of carnage and murder, your own lives will be the poorer and of small value to humanity.

George Washington Carver must have had innumerable occasions to hate mankind. How often must his blood have boiled and his heart shrivelled at rank injustice and blind intolerance? But he never permitted such thoughts and feelings to tarnish his life-work or to blacken his outlook.

Seniors of Jefferson—go from strength to strength on the high road that the Lord has stretched out before you. Take the right road. There lies your usefulness to your country, to your loved ones, to yourselves. And remember the ex-slave who, now nearing the end of his earthly journey, can face eternity with a smile in his heart for a life well lived.

OFFICERS OF THE SENIOR CLASS

December 1942

Fellow Graduates,

We have come to the termination of our instructive and enjoyable years of high school; termination in fact, but certainly not in thought. We are now ready to experience reality, with its pitfalls and peaks.

In normal times we would all go our separate ways, each with his own plans and ambitions for the future. Today, however, we are in the midst of a brutal global war, fighting for the salvage of civilization. We must make heroic sacrifices, if necessary, to keep and preserve our democratic way of life, and put the welfare of our country above personal ambitions.

Our roads may take us far apart; but irrespective of the distance, we all must be unified in a determination to win the war, and to help make a just and lasting peace. Only in an unharassed world will we be able to pursue our aims and eventually, attain our objectives.

Sincerely yours,

Bernard Sunshine

the spirit of jefferson high–forever in our hearts

You remember! Sure you do! It wasn't so long ago that we graduated from Jefferson. As you turn the pages of this book, try to recall the Jefferson we knew and loved.

Remember the beginning of each term? The program committee used to mess up our schedules. Oh, were we annoyed! But that was Jefferson, and how we loved it!

Did we have it in for the freshies! How many elevator passes did you trade? Remember how the S.P. used to have it in for us?

We didn't like the last two hours of homework each day; but we were so much the better for it. There were a lot of things we didn't like. We hated the gym-to-Physics rush. That fellow never did let us out early enough! We hated to stand on the lunch room line; but stand we did, even for twenty minutes at a stretch!

If we got tired of school, there were always Wednesday with its short schedule and Friday with its promised vacation.

Ever go to a Jeff-Boys, or Jeff-Tilden game? You'll never forget those tilts, will you? Everyone would freeze to his seat with excitement when the ball was near our goal, and yell himself hoarse when it was near theirs.

Ah! Those were the days—gone, but never forgotten!

Those were the little things, trivial and isolated as they were, that went to make the Spirit of Jefferson High alive in our hearts forever. May the future carry out the Spirit that was nursed so generously in Jefferson High!

faith

What is a nation without hope and faith?

It is a ship

Wallowing in the turbulent sea of disaster,

Rudderless . . . helpless.

Banished be the sceptic, cynic, and coward.

We must believe in the ability of man

To soar aloft

And successfully storm the citadel of persecution.

The fate of the world is for us to decide.

Iron and blood has had its day;

It is time for the brain and heart to command;

To lead us on to a world of peace;

Cautiously to steal

In an unguarded moment

Upon Utopia.

We shall believe—

And in the wake of belief

Follow with the redemption of all mankind.

Ben Lang

that's the spirit

There's a kid in Brownsville with sloppy clothes and dirty hands who goes from house to house to collect the precious metals. There's the kid next door, a neighbor of yours and mine, with straw-colored braids and rosy cheeks who asks for unneeded keys. There's the busy housewife who devotes a part of her valuable hours to selling stamps and bonds. Perhaps it's your mother or mine. Then, too, there's the tired man, who with helmet and flashlight prepares to protect our homes. That's the spirit, major and minor Americans. That's what it takes! Spare those pennies and minutes for the general good. You won't miss them.

Though the world crumble at your feet, you will never sink to nothingness with a chin upraised and a fighting spirit: a spirit to better this furious world whose flames of peace are rapidly being extinguished by a Hateful Monster.

Stand up and fight—each and every one of you with guns, with time, with money—fight with all your might! Hit the Axis hard!

That's the way, kid! You won't get a lolly for collecting scrap; but peace is worth a million lollies. That's right, Mom! The security of your family is worth a million more immaculate homes than yours. Stay there another few minutes. You can dust this afternoon. Come on, Pop! I know you're tired, but your home is worth more than those minutes of sleep you lose. Keep guard! Then brave kids and Moms and Pops will make a braver world.

forward

"It is for man to tame the chaos; on every side whilst he lives, to scatter the seeds of science and song." So wrote one of America's intellects, Ralph Waldo Emerson.

How I wish our new future could be cemented about this monumental wisdom! Do you believe it too vast for the human mind to perceive a world dedicated to the fulfillment and preservation of that universal belief? Then let us analyze it and get to its core.

"It is for man to tame the chaos, . . . " What a powerful expression! How in the world can the mind of man search out the roots of chaos and at the same time, destroy them? The solution is clear as crystal. Emerson tells us how in the very same breath, "On every side, whilst he lives, to scatter the seeds of science and song." Erect more schools! Raise more laboratories! Propagate the instruments of learning to enable all to drink from the cup of knowledge.

But tragically enough, increasing the means of education does not augment learning by one iota. We must forge and temper the metals of progress until we have succeeded in casting a die of the future. Let us fill this die with music and tolerance, with art and respect, with literature and understanding.

Don't slide back! Progress has never been made by living in the Past. Look back and suffer the fate of Lot; look ahead and live!

Martin Wellin

unconquerable

From the broken backs of men it rises. . . . From the chambers of the dead it comes. . . . For the conquered living it brings hope. It's never heralded with drums.

Steady as the dripping faucet, inevitably the day advances. No führer will ever stop it with evils, like guns and lances.

"Heinrich Killed!" . . . That's its work. . . . "Bomb at Munich!" . . . Again it strikes. . . . From the wilds of Yugoslavia to Holland's worn-torn dykes.

Unconquered Spirit lives anew, out of the murk and gloom of hate, and death and sorrow—The yoke! From tens come thousands soon!

A sentry whirls and barks a challenge. But too late! The finger points, jabs a knife between his blades, and with blood the earth anoints.

It lives, it lives! . . . 'Twill never die—for Spirit lives when bodies crack. . . . Crack a million, tall and strong, yet a million will come back.

Even now the rumblings sound, as Spirit wings its upward way, inevitable be the goal as Nazi's judgment day.

peace

When this gigantic conflict has terminated
Shall we have completed our struggle?
Must we not look with telescopic vision
To the future?

Many are the wars that have been fought
And some men say, "Won,"
But not I.
Admission by the enemy
Of defeat
Does not suffice;
For admission
Is but a hollow statement
Devoid of any feeling
But hatred;
A device used to obtain a truce
So that the world can regain its strength
To fight once more.

The intrinsic value of a war's culmination
Is the assurance of peace;
Which once attained
Should be clasped to the breast
And nurtured
Eternally.

story of a nation

How they laughed, in '76 . . . "Yankee Doodle," they called us then. . . . But from their laughter came respect for a nation built by MEN. In 1812 we stood and fought for the freedom of God's seas. And the world looked up, took note as TENS threw hundreds to their knees. And then again in '36 Santa Anna tried our mettle. "Remember the Alamo," we shouted then, as we proceeded Santa Anna to settle. Dark clouds came in '65. Rebellion reared its ugly head. "Save the Union," was our cry as we struck those rebels dead. "Remember the Maine," they shouted once, and remember it we did. Santiago, Manila, came in turn—and checked the Spanish bid. In 1917 the whole earth shook as Germany's ill-bred blast shook us to our feet once more. . . . To make that one her last. "Remember Pearl Harbor" we cry today, as we put the Axis in its place. . . . For America, they know at last, will never lose its face. So have spirit. Cheer up, American youth. . . . We have a world to rebuild!

indomitable

The American spirit is unconquerable. Dashing with relentless fury like waves against barren rocks, it hastens to destroy destruction. Unyielding to obstacles it grows more tempestuous, more fiery.

The American spirit is aggressive. Slowly, it seeps its way into the heart of every man, woman and child. Surely, it grips the souls of freedom-loving men.

The American spirit is a dream. Drowning in a sea of barbarism, the peoples of conquered Europe cling to the life-preserver of American spirit.

The American spirit is a reality. To our valiant forces, it's a down-to-earth proposition of "liberty or death," of "culture or kultur." That the end of that spirit would lead to total annihilation of everything we hold dear to us is clear.

American spirit marches on. The roaring crescendo will burst into thunder and envelop the whole world in its sweep. One day, the entire earth shall understand the significance of the glowing torch of our robed Lady guarding the harbor of New York.

spirit of war

Spirit of blacked-out nights and screeching sirens,
Spirit of fearful hours,
Your work awaits you!
Before departing, shade the sheen of trenchant steel from my eyes;
Spirit of doubts and hopes (pressing even onward),
Spirit of fearful days and barbaric scenes,
    Tingling spirit!
With roaring cannon and pleading cry
You must invade the nation.

While your men, your indefatigable strength plunge into battle,
And the weight of artillery bows down their backs;
While burst of ammunition shakes their forms,
While monstrous, artificial birds creep slowly—slyly, away from home
Moving with steady motion,
Rising and falling with heavy thuds,
At marching feet keep time,
Spirit of peaceful hours
Once known to me—
(A brilliant glow and then at once a ghastly death)

Touch my heart!

O diabolical war,
Will to me your blasphemous curses!
Leave your bloody trails behind forever!
Let future years sit back and see the sun:
Let years give birth to everlasting peace.

The Free Spirit

the free spirit

He caught sight of it gleaming in the sun. It went forward slowly like a huge dragon ready for the kill. But he saw it! He thought a moment and then wheeled his huge thunderbird down. Like a rocket it went hurtling down, down to death, down to victory. Colin Kelley had spirit!

Pierre worked in a munitions factory. He didn't want to; he hated it; he hated them. They forced him to fill shells with gunpowder. He had a chance to destroy his enemies, but that would mean he must destroy himself and his friends who worked with him. Would it pay to take a chance? Would it pay to destroy millions of bullets and guns used to destroy his people?

He looked around and saw his weary friends. Their eyes seemed to say, "Yes, do it." He was ready! He took a deep breath, put his hand in his pocket and removed a match. He struck it against his shoe. It glowed for a second and—Pierre too had spirit.

I can go on telling stories of spirit. I can tell you of the Chinese people, the Russians, the Dutch, the Norwegians, the Danes and the people of central and southern Europe. I can tell you of the baseball player hitting a home run in the last half of the ninth inning to win the game. I can tell you about the football player who ran for a touchdown just before the game ended. They all have spirit.

If we have the freedom of spirit within us we shall always be free. The free spirit cannot die!

legacy

As it becomes necessary for the honorable class of January 1943 to leave the Republic of Thomas Jefferson High School, we, the class members, being fully aware of the disastrous loss which befalls the school upon our departure, deem it wise to bequeath unto our Alma Mater lasting and impressionable gifts which will ever recall sweet memories of our worthy class. Whereas we, the class of January '43, believing ourselves to be of sound minds, etc., do hereby benevolently bequeath the following (not because we are growing old and feel that death is near, but because we no longer have any use for the following bequests):

Item: To those in charge of the absence excuses, we leave all the alibis originated and explained by us.

Item: To the biology teachers we leave the digestive system of a bachelor-menelsium achlorioasis (a cockroach).

Item: To the mathematics teachers we leave an excellently constructed left angle whose sine equals infinity.

Item: To all future classes subjected to the agony of language, we leave a translator.

Item: To the Board of Regents we bequeath any day of the week but the first four and the last three in which to give us our examinations.

Item: To the Student Patrol we leave a few freshmen who will obey their ruthless commands.

Item: To those who eat in the lunch room we leave a jar of mustard with which to eat their pretzels.

Item: To the teachers who have not in their youth obtained a thorough background in mathematics we leave a list of numbers from 65 to 100 which will be posted in the library for their benefit.

Item: To the teachers who fail students for not laughing at their "jokes" we leave a book entitled "How to Tell Jokes Successfully."

Item: To the French teachers we leave the pleasure of teaching ignorant freshies, sophs, and juniors (seniors can't be ignorant) the correct manner of pronouncing such a simple letter as "u."

Item: To Freddie we leave a poster which he will exhibit in his elevator, warning students to have their passes ready.

Item: To all the bald-headed members of our faculty we leave a steel brush and comb.

Item: To the future seniors we leave the pleasure of thinking up some new tasks for freshies to perform.

And lastly, to those insignificant creatures who classify themselves Seventh-Termers, we brilliant and far-seeing seniors bequeath worthwhile and precious gifts which will always be an inspiration and a guiding light to them. To the dull ones we leave our wit and intelligence; to the careless we leave our sympathy; to those who cut classes we leave our newest creation, a masterpiece, entitled "Various Methods of Ditching Classes with Appropriate Alibis for Each Occasion." To the tactless ones we leave our wisdom; and to the senseless we leave our superior mentality. All else that has not been mentioned, we, the departing seniors, take along with us into the hard and cruel world.

In witness whereof, we have hereunto subscribed our signatures and affixed the seal of the Notary Public, this 30th day of January, one thousand nine hundred and forty-three.

the cheering squad

All professional and amateur games from soccer to football differ widely; but all are attended by one thing in common: the Cheering Squad.

On a foreign field, away from the familiar stands and home ground, the team is lost in the hubbub of hostile jeers and wild gestures. Morale becomes a necessity. So the cheering squad, the little fellows and girls who get out there before their team to do their stuff before friend or foe, in rain or shine, become the unsung heroes of the game.

The Jefferson Squad, under the direction of Mr. Schain, is no exception. At every meet—soccer, basketball, or football—at home or on enemy fields, they have done their utmost to give our teams that last nudge to victory.

Those seven boys and seven girls have given from two to four hours per week of their after-school time for practice, and have gone to every game of the teams.

An example of their fine morale is the fact that this term they travelled, at their own expense, to the White Plains field, outside New York City, just to cheer our boys on.

The history of the squad, which dates back to the first days of Jefferson, has been honorable through the years. This term they have been newly captained by Mr. Schain, and have certainly been performing excellent service.

football

Where would a school be without spirit? The answer is hard to imagine, for every school has at least one team, and that team is an example of school fighting spirit. Jefferson shows that spirit in many ways, but never so well as in its football team.

This term the team has fought courageously seven contests, the hardest schedule in many years, against some of the city's best teams. This was the team that tied Boys High, and was the first team to score twice against White Plains in four years. What is even more impressive is the fact that the total score amassed by this term's squad was greater than that of any squad for the past ten years.

Let's see what went to make this team. The boys worked in the field between 1:30 and 5:30 every day from the beginning of the term to the close of the season, including five hours on Sunday, and more on Saturday. They were even out there practicing on holidays, rain or shine. Coach "Doc" Washington had thirty-eight men at his call and used about twenty per game.

Many teams would have cracked under such strained conditions as this team underwent. But "Doc" attributed much of the spirit of the team to "the most loyal cheering squad I've ever seen."

Hero of the term is Jack San Filippo, end and halfback who worked hardest to pull the team ahead, and even insisted on playing while sustaining a broken jaw.

Yes sir, Thomas Jefferson's football team this term certainly has lived up to tradition, and deserves a big hand!

basketball

The Jefferson hoopsters really kept Jefferson a respectable and formidable contender in scholastic sporting circles. Last season Coach Sam Schoenfeld with a squad of novices landed Jefferson a runner-up berth in the divisional race. This term almost all of the old members returned, and vowed to lift the divisional crown from Eastern District who beat them in an overtime playoff for the championship by one point.

As prospects brightened, our boys did not rest on their laurels. They worked out three hours a day, three days a week since October, playing their first game at the end of November. Coach Schoenfeld trained eleven regular varsity members, all fully capable of carrying the banner of Jefferson to eventual triumph through competition that is by no means soft.

The Jefferson soccer team worked out earlier this season to reach better shape. Although their progress has not been rapid, the boys showed exceptional sportsmanship in all games. The situation caused by the fact that many of the upper classmen were holding jobs and taking war courses struck a harder blow upon the soccer team than upon other Jefferson squads. But the boys hit hard, and defended well.

Buturla and Moskowitz were the sparkplugs of our defensive action. Bernard Sunshine managed the team and Dave Carlin captained it.

Though the soccer squad has been unsung all season, they tried just as hard, and achieved as much relative success as any other team. Coach Clark had no light task on his hands when he organized and coached this team. Ask Lafayette or Cleveland!

Mr. Clark observes that a great number of Jefferson's alumni now in the armed forces have been at one time or another on the soccer team.

the ranger program

Perhaps you Jeffersonians wondered what it was all about. Each time you went to the gym the instructors made you jump off platforms, over horses, and over parallel bars. They made you climb ropes, lift weights, do all sorts of contortions on the bars, and in general, almost break your neck. You probably remembered the tumbling best, for after you got done, the world went round and round.

Now it can be told. You were being conditioned for possible military service, boys and girls. The idea was to develop you both physically and psychologically—physically, to develop endurance, and strength and agility; psychologically, to develop courage and to become familiar with the type of training encountered in service on a large scale.

Now that it's over, you'll have a chance to see what it meant for you, as many of you don uniforms to help rid the earth of barbarism, intolerance, and injustice. Then many of you will be mighty glad you took it.

E. S. and G. I.

commandettes

If you noticed more black and blue marks on the girls than ever, and if they seemed to come up to classes more disheveled, you probably blamed it on the war.

During the past term Jefferson girls emerged from the ping-pong playing days. The H.E. Department replaced the "soft" sports with Commandette training which was a modification of the program of the Rangers.

"The idea of this training," explained Miss Goldman, head of the Girls' H.E. Department, "was to enable the girls to do such things as Commandos may be called upon to do, and to be able to handle their bodies in such a way that they will be able to get away with it."

Confidentially, the teachers were amazed and delighted with the results. The girls showed a great deal of enthusiasm and took the bruises like little majors.

Jumping from heights and going into a forward roll, vaulting over high obstacles, climbing and swinging on ropes, jumping distances, crawling under low bars, and hanging in various positions were some of the feats the girls learned to master.

Yes, girls have come a long way. It won't be long before females are on an equal footing with males not only socially and politically but athletically as well.
